James Parton's Daily Life.

James Parton would not do hasty work. He was methodical, patient, regular, and persistent, and in time he had become so able to control his mind that it responded to his will like the body to his mind. He did not tax himself to work out great feats within a short time, or if he was hard pressed he gave himself rest as soon as the strain was over. He did not burn midnight oil, neither did he resort to wine or tobacco as stimulants to his brain. He was one of the most temperate men I have ever known. He kept his faculties every day as near as he could to their best, and life flowed on from day to day with an evenness and a quietness that made his home life not only pleasant for others, but beautiful in itself.

His habits were to breakfast about half past 7, then to work in his garden in the summer for an hour, and then to shut himself in his workshop, where he could be sure to be undisturbed until half past 12. Then he dined, and then he was ready for callers or visits to friends, or for the reading which might be required for the work of the next day. After tea he was usually the companion of his family, hearing his wife or niece read aloud some book or magazine, and this was his daily round, unless broken in upon, month after month, year in and year out. He did not often go to Boston or New York or seek a large number of literary acquaintances, and yet he was never unsocial. He was the light and life of two clubs in Newburyport, and he was extremely fond of a good square talk, in which he was fired up to his utmost.—Rev. J. H. Ward in New England Magazine.

What Dog Stories Lack.

Presumably a wholly satisfactory dog story has yet to be written. It is rather strange that so faithful, so beloved, a friend and companion as the dog has always been to mankind should have so little, comparatively, written about him. When we come to consider that companionship and loyalty, we are compelled to set it down as a remarkable piece of ingratitude upon the part of man, not to make his friend the dog more of a figure in the literature of fiction. Mrs. E. B. Bauld is said to have written the first dog story. We have never seen it. All the story of Rab is of course familiar to all. Yet, however much of a classic it may have come to be recognized, it is at best fragmentary, and we must confess that we do not share that enthusiasm which is popularly expressed over it.

It can be taken for granted that nobody but a lover of the dog will write of the dog. The fault that we have to find with stories about dogs is their invariable lack of tenderness. When the dog comes to die, his biographer invariably dismisses that event with a casual "Poor old doggy! He has gone where good doggies go—the good old doggies' heaven." It is as if the biographer were ashamed to speak what his heart prompts: as if he were controlled by that same curious, awkward, wicked sense of pride which makes the simple fellow feign a snicker or a laugh during the progress of an emotional drama, at the very moment, too, when a lump is in his throat and his eyes are brimful of tears.—Chicago News-Record.

She Got a Seat.

A very pretty girl stepped into a crowded car on the College avenue line. She belonged in the high school and wasn't in the habit of standing up. The car was full, but everybody else had a seat. Seven men held down the most available ones, and, strange to relate, not one of them appeared to be aware that a young woman was compelled to stand.

The pretty girl, with a quick glance of disgust about the car, took in the situation and blushed somewhat indignantly. She had a long distance to ride and couldn't cling gracefully to a strap. Two squares had been traveled when an idea took possession of her classical mind. Out came the miniature purse from the embroidered silk reticule, and the little hands fumbled among a few silver coins. A nickel dropped to the floor and rolled to the far end of the car. This is part of the plan, but it is executed dexterously, and the passengers pity her. She blushed and murmured, "How awkward of me." Unsteadily she started after the nickel, but seven men intercepted the movement and rushed to the point, as the artful maiden dropped into a comfortable seat with a sigh and deftly hid a roguish smile.

The 5-cent piece was tendered by a man who assumed her place at the strap. She thanked him and looked all innocence.—Indianapolis Journal.

The Question of Food and Drink.

Fancy being confronted with the question, "What kind of food and drink do you prefer?" and only half of a rather narrow page in which to inscribe the answer. How could one answer such a question in such a space? For one's ideas as to food and drink vary so much with the hours of the day. Morning, tea or coffee very likely, with breakfast bacon or kidneys or fried sole or plain boiled eggs. But who wants boiled eggs and coffee at his luncheon? Then, again, dry champagne is generally a favorite drink at dinner, but we do not usually care for it at luncheon, and late at night most men have a preference for whiskey and soda and would not care in the least for Pommery or Roederer. Then a man may have a strong liking for oysters, and also for olives, and how is he to get in all his opinions on these various questions of taste as to food and drink?—Exchange.

American Workmen.

Nothing so much surprises Englishmen who visit this country as the dignity and good manners of American workmen. An Englishman who found himself hard up in the far south and took to making orange boxes for a living declares that his fellow workers, mostly white mechanics, were all gentlemen. They saw that he had been accustomed to a different mode of life, but all forebore to ask embarrassing questions, and while none cringed before his evidences of former good fortune all were respectful of his superior education.—New York Sun.

HALE METHOD OF PAINLESS FILLING.

NEW DEPARTURE IN DENTISTRY!

DR. PORTER HAS RETURNED for the purpose of advertising the

"Hale Method of Painless Filling."

Absolutely painless without Chloroform, Gas, Ether or Cocaine.

OFFICE IN STEELE BUILDING, COMMERCIAL ROW, RENO.

Here are a Few Testimonials from Citizens Who have Already Tried the Method:

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—It affords me pleasure to say that the Hale method of painless filling opens a new era in the dental world. After having several very sensitive cavities filled by you with gold and amalgam with gratifying results, I am of the opinion that the method is far beyond competition.
PATRICK HENRY.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—In answer to your request for my candid opinion as to the Hale method of painless filling, I beg to state that I went to one of Dr. Lee's finest operators in San Francisco, and he filled several teeth for me with more or less pain; but when he came to the one you have just filled, it was simply impossible for me to endure the torture, consequently I asked him to stop, which he did. I thought I would be obliged to have the tooth extracted. I wish to state that in five minutes after you commenced to operate there was positively no pain; it felt just as if you were cutting a piece of wood. I am so highly pleased with the manner in which you filled the tooth that I feel it but just to express my appreciation of the method. It is all you claim for it.
CHARLES HOPE.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—I have had teeth extracted before by so-called painless methods, but you are the only operator who has extracted teeth for me without pain. Your method of extracting surpasses my most sanguine expectations.
MRS. H. PRENTISS.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—It gives me great pleasure to state that I am thoroughly convinced of the excellence of your method. I expected to suffer dreadfully having the cavity filled, as it was the worst one I had to have done. In about five minutes after you began to work on it I was satisfied that it would not hurt, which it did not during the entire operation. The tooth you extracted is one I have been dreading for eight years, and after consulting dentists in Sacramento, who advised me not to have it removed, as the ordeal might prove injurious to my health and also disfigure my face. You extracted the tooth without a particle of pain, and I will have no further dread of the dental chair, providing I can obtain the Hale Method.
MARY E. FLECKENSTEIN.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—After using Hale's Painless Method as administered by you in the extraction of teeth, I can bear testimony that the results are satisfactory, and that teeth can be extracted painless by said method.
Respectfully yours,
HENRY J. NEYLAND.

Dr. Porter—DEAR SIR:—I believe that the Hale Painless Method of filling is destined to lead the world in its special field of usefulness. I am particularly impressed with it, owing to the fact that one does not lose consciousness while having teeth filled, and at the same time does not suffer a particle of pain. You are at liberty to refer any one who contemplates having sensitive teeth filled to me.

THE GOLD DRAIN.

The free gold in the treasury is almost exhausted and the European demand for the metal continues. Secretary Carlisle is consulting with the arch goldbug Senator Sherman, who has been several times in the treasury department where he is doubtless a welcome if not an invited visitor. Carlisle absolutely declines to outline the policy of the administration or intimate what he intends to do if the foreign demand for gold keeps up.

The New York bank presidents say there is no cause for alarm and that the order that no more gold certificates be issued was very proper under the circumstances. Sherman, they say, issued a similar order when he was secretary of the treasury and the people soon tired of carrying gold about. They say they do not look for any great depreciation in value, and of course hope that the treasury will replenish its stock of gold by issuing bonds.

On the other hand there are those who think the action of the goldbugs will precipitate what they profess to fear so much, the transfer to a silver basis. While the law makes greenbacks and treasury notes redeemable in coin—either gold or silver—the policy of the government under Harrison, and Cleveland does not change it, has been to redeem all obligations of the government exclusively in gold. This is depleting the treasury and the banks and if the shipments of gold to Europe do not cease the government must pay out silver or issue bonds to European money lenders for gold to supply the demand.

If the secretary of the treasury would adhere to the law, which authorizes him to redeem government notes and treasury notes in either gold or silver, instead of obeying the dictates of Sherman and Wall street, there would be more gold and less silver in the treasury, products would command higher prices and the country would be more prosperous.

What is needed is a congress that will make it compulsory upon the secretary of the treasury to pay a part of all government obligations in silver and coin the stacks of bullion now stored in the treasury vaults to meet those obligations. The whole country outside of Wall street complains of the scarcity of money. Gold is being shipped to Europe at the rate of several millions a week and yet the secretary of the treasury, coached by John Sherman, will not order the mints to coin silver.

DANGEROUS SOLDIERS.

The experiment of making soldiers of Indians, which Secretary Proctor thought two or three years ago would be a great success, has been tried and found wanting. The Indians are more dangerous as soldiers than they are in their native haunts. There are companies composed exclusively of Apaches and San Carlos Indians in the Tenth and Eleventh Infantry stationed in Arizona and as they are uncontrollable when they can procure liquor and threaten the lives of those whom they are intended to protect, they are to be sent to Barrancas, Florida. The Army and Navy Journal commenting upon the reports of officers at Fort Bowie and Apache, where those Indian soldiers have been stationed, says:

"Many of these reports show the Indians to be well advanced in drill, but little or no progress has been made in civilization. In a number of instances the presence of Indian troops is regarded as a standing menace to the safety of the neighborhood. On the last pay-day at Fort Bowie, Ariz., where Company I, 10th Infantry, composed of Apache and San Carlos Indians, is stationed, more than half the company got drunk, as they have repeatedly done before, and became so unruly as to cause the greatest alarm to the rest of the garrison and citizens of the neighborhood. They were insubordinate, ugly and defiant, and threatened to go back to the reservation in a body. It was only by the greatest prudence that the officers succeeded in preventing serious trouble. So unruly has this company become that the officers have felt themselves constrained, as a means of preserving peace, to recommend their removal to some other section of the country where discipline can be maintained and where the Indians themselves can derive some benefit from civilized surroundings.

"The war department has accordingly decided to send the company to Fort Barrancas, Fla. Rather than incur this expense would it not be better to discharge the men, send them back to their reservations, and let missionaries or somebody else try their hand in civilizing them?"

It is probable that the idea of civilizing Indians by enlisting them in the army will be abandoned as impracticable, unless they can be stationed at posts where it will be impossible for them to get any kind of intoxicating liquor. The war department has ascertained what the settlers in the west have long been cognizant of, that an Indian with firearms in his hands and firewater in his stomach is a dangerous animal.

In 1891 the Carnegie Steel Company paid $5,000,000 in dividends, the greater part of which was spent by Mr. Carnegie in Europe, buying shooting grounds and aping the aristocracy. Last year, in consequence of the Homestead strike, the dividends of the company are said to have been reduced to $1,000,000.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Considering the Advisability of Using Silver.

TREASURY NOTES.

Secretary Carlisle Thinking of Redeeming Them With Silver.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The gold situation to-day is considered to be easier than yesterday. The treasury officials are more confident than twenty-four hours ago, and in the minds of all the impression has become stronger that it may not be necessary for the secretary to take any action which will change the present policy of the department. Carlisle's determined attitude has already had a beneficial effect and so soon as it becomes known that the secretary of the treasury seriously considered the advisability of stopping the payment of gold coin for treasury notes issued under the silver act of July 14, 1890, the situation will present a very different phase and the shipment of gold which was looked upon as a means for forcing the administration to issue bonds will come to an end.

A cabinet meeting to-day was devoted to some extent to the consideration of the financial situation and it is believed the secretary of the treasury will be upheld in his advice to stop for the present the payment in gold of treasury notes.

Under the silver act of 1890, at present there are outstanding $180,000,000 in notes and they are being constantly redeemed in gold at the New York treasury. The redemption in gold has been a matter of accommodation on the part of the treasury department, as the law gives the secretary of the treasury discretion as to whether they will be redeemed in gold or silver. Now that the gold balance is reduced, the secretary of the treasury is considering the advisability of using his discretion and paying these notes in silver. If the secretary of the treasury determines to take advantage of the discretion given him by the silver purchase law, it will be a more difficult matter for the New Yorkers to obtain gold certificates and the treasury notes would leave them with less upon which gold could be obtained.

There is a feeling among some of the men who have been prominent in financial circles; that should Secretary Carlisle issue an order stopping this redemption, it would approach something of a sensation, but those who are best known claim that nothing of the kind would result and still insist if it became apparent that Secretary Carlisle was to adopt this course, the New Yorkers who have been represented as trying to push the government into an embarrassing position would see their efforts in vain and gold would again begin to flow into the treasury. If they are correct in their surmise it will be unnecessary for Carlisle to take any further action.

The confidence of the treasury officials has increased by the knowledge that Conrad M. Jordan, the new sub-treasurer at New York, will probably enter his duties to-morrow morning. His ability is particularly well thought of here and with his assistance it is believed Secretary Carlisle will successfully meet the situation.

LABOR TROUBLES.

Troops Kill Four Strikers and Wound Many Others.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

BRUSSELS, April 18.—The most serious disturbance to-day in relation to the labor troubles is reported from Bourghout, a village a short distance from Antwerp. Many candle-makers have joined the movement in favor of the universal suffrage. Those remaining at work were attacked by the strikers to-day and the troops were called upon to protect the workers and restore order. The appearance of the soldiery had no effect in quelling the riot and the officer in command ordered the men to fix bayonets and charge. Four strikers were killed and fifteen others received more or less serious bayonet thrusts. Several will die. Great excitement prevails in the village and the strikers threaten vengeance for the death of their comrades. Here, as in other parts of the country, the men are spurred on to riot by women.

In view of the action of the deputies the labor leaders resolved at a meeting this evening to advise the abandonment of the general strike. At the same time they decided to issue to the people a manifesto against the Nysen bill, proposing a combination of plural voting and universal suffrage. Leaders urge the people to follow up the victory by agitating unceasingly for universal suffrage pure and simple.

The police and workmen had several encounters this evening and six rioters were seriously injured. Nevertheless the end of the riots are believed to be near. The decision of the labor leaders to abandon the strike has produced a general feeling of relief.

Weather Forecast.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—The forecast for Nevada is fair weather, and warmer.

All Santa Fe Men About to Strike.

Special to the JOURNAL.]

TORONTO, April 18.—A sensation of considerable magnitude was created this afternoon when it was noted about that a general strike of all trainmen on the Santa Fe system would occur to-morrow. It was discovered that a joint committee appointed by five organizations of training this afternoon called upon the superintendent of the machinery and requested him to inform them whether it was true the company had decided to annul, as soon as possible, all contracts with the organizations they represented and make no new ones, intimating that if a satisfactory answer was not given the men would strike. The superintendent said he would surely respect all contracts in force with all trainmen's organizations. Whether the men consider the answer satisfactory it is difficult to tell. It is believed the strike will not occur to-morrow, but the difficulty is by no means settled.

THE APPLE WORM.

A Brief Account in the Interest of Nevada Apple Growers.
Newspaper Bulletin No. 4.

This is the worst insect pest in Nevada at the present time. Its prevalence and the limits of its distribution have increased wonderfully within the past few years. While some orchards are slightly affected others are most thoroughly stocked. This latter condition will be common to all in the near future. This insect, the mature form of which is known as the codling moth, originally came from Europe, was brought into California about twenty years ago and probably came into Nevada from our neighbor state. No exclusion act will have any effect in a case of this kind. Existing conditions must be met and the apple crop saved from ruin by intelligent individual effort.

THE NATURAL HISTORY

Or habits of this insect should be understood to make evident the reasons for the lines of treatment commonly employed.

A—Section of apple showing work of the larva of the codling moth.
B—Codling Moth.
C—Cocoon of the same.

The "worm" so familiar to all is produced from an egg deposited upon the apple by a small moth. This parent is capable of laying from fifty to 100 eggs, and in almost all cases but a single one is placed upon an apple. In this process a rough place is preferred, consequently the eggs of the first brood (of which later there are two or possibly three each season) are placed at the "blow" end of the forming apple. This occurs at the time the blossoms fall or soon after.

The manner and time of egg-laying are very uniform habits with this insect and are all-important in the consideration of remedies.

In the course of a week the egg hatches and the young worm at once begins to gnaw towards the core of the apple. The worm attains its growth while in the fruit; then leaves it to form the pupa. Much wormy fruit will have fallen by this time, but in any case the worm seeks some protecting crevice in which to pass the pupa state. None better is afforded than the spaces between the young bark and the old scales. Here cocoons may be found in great numbers.

Three or four weeks are spent by the worm in the fruit and two weeks at least in the pupa, which remains surrounded by the white silken cocoon. By the middle of June, or possibly before, a second brood of moths appear. By July 1st these have visited the apples and deposited eggs for a third brood. The rough skin of the fruit and the stem cavity now offer suitable places for the deposition of eggs, and here they are often placed. The history of this brood may differ from that of the other in this, that some of the moths may appear in August but most of them remain in pupae hibernating in this form to appear the following May.

REMEDIES.

The question now arises, "In which of the stages, namely, the egg, the cocoon, or the moth may we attack this pest and be reasonably sure of success?" The moths are almost ever seen, so there is nothing to hope for here. Many cocoons are found under scales of bark. These may be destroyed and the egg-laying of many moths prevented. The worms busily burrowing within as many different apples are beyond attack. Their destruction now means the destruction of the fruit we would save. The eggs are two minutes to be sought out and destroyed even were such a step practicable.

But the young worm takes for its first meal a small part of the outside of the apple. Let the surface of the fruit be thoroughly poisoned and the desired end is gained. The worm is killed before it enters the fruit.

Thus we have two lines of treatment which may be followed. The worm may be killed in its incipency, or after its work of destruction is over and it is sleeping in its silken cocoon. The reader will note the advantages of one method over those of the other.

At this season many cocoons may be destroyed by scraping the rough bark from the trunks of the trees and clearing all refuse from under the trees. Let all this be burned. Bands of cloth may be placed about the trunks a foot or more above the ground. The worms will resort to the folds of these. By June first these may be dipped in hot water and again placed about the trees, the process to be repeated at intervals later. Thus your own and your neighbor's fruit is being protected from many future moths which you destroy in the cocoon. However this is only after your own fruit has been injured.

POISONING

Is accomplished by spraying on the fruit either of the arsenical poisons, London purple or Paris green. These are used in water mixture (they will not dissolve and form a solution) one pound of London purple to 200 gallons of water, or one pound of Paris green to 250 gallons of water. During the application process these mixtures must be kept well agitated, otherwise the first used is too weak and the last too strong. The tendency of these compounds is to destroy foliage, causing it to turn brown and fall. This must not be permitted to occur to any great extent.

As to danger in use of these poisons there is absolutely none. The winds, possible rains, and especially the change in the skin of fruit, remove every trace of poison by the time the fruit is ripe. Repeated chemical analysis have demonstrated that the amount of poisons adhering to the fruit is perfectly harmless.

The first spraying should be done at the time the blossoms are falling. This is in time to catch the first eggs and sufficiently late to save the bees from poisoning. A second application ten days after the first, and again at six and eight weeks after the first should result in saving almost all of the fruit.

SPRAYING APPARATUS.

The essentials here are: Firstly, a force pump that will throw a continuous stream, which, if unobstructed, will extend far above the tree-tops. Secondly, a nozzle, which, without destroying the force of the pump, resolves the stream into a fine mist that will penetrate every hidden nook of the tree. Thirdly, these two are to be connected by a light hose long enough to permit the nozzle being held by means of a light pole among the branches. The foregoing statements relative to the theory of this treatment show the necessity of thorough work performed at the right time.

F. H. HILLMAN,

Agricultural experiment station, Reno, Nev., April 15, 1893.

DEATH OF A PIONEER.

An Old Resident and Good Citizen Gone to the Undiscovered Country.

At a late hour Monday night J. J. Poor, one of the first citizens of Reno, departed this life to solve the mystery of the Great Beyond. He was a native of Bangor, Maine, aged 78 years. He emigrated to California in 1850, and was engaged in mining in that State until 1863, when he came to Aurora, Nevada, and engaged in business. He settled on the Truckee near Reno in 1868, soon after the railroad was built, from which time he resided here up to the time of his death. He leaves five children, four daughters and a son, namely, Mrs. Frank Bell, Mrs. C. C. Powning, Mrs. Rebecca Bourne, Mrs. Irwin Ayers of Oakland, and Mr. Frank Poor of Fort Bidwell to mourn the loss of a kind and indulgent father. The four daughters are here but the son, who resides beyond reach of the telegraph, could not be notified of his father's death in time to attend the funeral.

The deceased was a kind-hearted, honest man, and respected by the entire community. He had been in feeble health for some time but was not confined to his bed until quite recently. His funeral will take place from Masonic hall at 2 o'clock this afternoon, where the services will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Bradshaw, who was highly esteemed by Mr. Poor.

"THE MIGHTY DOLLAR."

A Large Audience Witnessed the Play Last Night.

There was a large attendance at the opera house last night to witness the play of the "Mighty Dollar," and it is safe to say the audience was not disappointed. Mrs. W. J. Florence's role of Mrs. General Gilroy exhibited in a high degree her power of infusing the true spirit of high comedy. As the merry, gossip, but withal the warm-hearted American widow, Mrs. General Gilroy, she was humorous and pathetic by turns, shading off the transitions from grave to gay, from lively to severe, with the nicety of nature. Her French was considerably overlooked, and the female portion of the audience was appeased by noting the richness and splendor of the dresses worn by the lady.

As the Hon. Bardwell Slote, from the Cohoes district, Mr. Howard Covey secured a hit, and was in a great measure the life of the play. The other characters were well sustained, and when the rollicking comedy was ended, a delighted audience left the opera house. The company appear in Carson this evening, where a crowded house is assured, and to-morrow night the Reno people are assured of a treat.

"The Mighty Dollar" is purely an American play by an American author, reflecting the humor and pathos, the foibles and follies of American society to-day in the National Capital. The comedy, always pure in its tone, ambitious in its aim, presents a variety of national characters, as life-like as they are entertaining, and its appreciation is attested by the large audiences who witness its production.—Virginia Chronicle.

J. M. Campbell, a Texas sheep raiser, lost about one-fourth of his flocks last year by wolves. He has now hit upon a novel plan for exterminating the wolves. He entrapped a dozen of them and kept them with a mangy dog and until they caught the disease, and then turned them loose. He expects the mange to kill all the wolves in Texas within two years.

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

WINNEMUCCA EXPORTS.

Live Stock and Wool Shipments by Rail.

WinneMUCCA is claimed by the Silver State to be the greatest stock shipping point between San Francisco and Omaha. In the palmy days of the cattle industry the average yearly shipments of cattle alone amounted to about 25,000 head. It says the stock business is now getting on its feet again and last year about 10,000 head of beef cattle were shipped from this point. The shipments so far since January 1st, 1893, are as follows: Cattle, 374 carloads, or about 7,480 head; sheep, forty-two carloads, or a little over 4,000 head; horses, four carloads; hogs, two carloads. Of the cattle fifty-seven carloads were shipped to Chicago, the remainder to San Francisco. These figures show that the stock business, notwithstanding the severe setback it has received, is still in the ring by a large majority.

There is more wool shipped from WinneMUCCA than any other point in the state, and also a large amount of wheat, barley and other grain.

The Southern Pacific derives a good revenue from WinneMUCCA, and if it could be induced to reciprocate by reducing freight rates to this point it would make better times all around.

ONLY ONE REMENYI.

All Classes Appreciate the Eloquence of His Playing.

Of Remenyi, the great violinist, who is to appear with his company at the opera house next Saturday night, the Chicago Evening Post says:

There is only one Remenyi. He demonstrated that fact at his concert. He has the most marvelous technique, the most dainty tone, coupled with the ability to bring out every resource of his instrument. He is the poet of the violin; not wholly the poet of sentiment, but the poet of fire and force. Nothing could be more delicious than his performance of the canonetta in Godard's concerto, nor could any violin playing be more impressive than the Schubert "serenade" which he gave as the first encore number. It was in this piece that he showed his ability as a master of tonal resource. The violin, in the harmonic parts, filled the large hall with its sound. It became in the hands of Remenyi a thing full of life and power. The beauty of Remenyi's style is that it is so warm and appeals so directly to the musical sense. It may be original, sometimes superficial, but it is always effective. All classes appreciate the eloquence of his playing. He is an exceptional artist whom it is ever a delight to hear.

The Apple Pest.

An interesting and instructive article on the codling moth, the most destructive orchard pest known in Nevada, from Professor F. H. Hillman, entomologist of the experiment station, is printed in the JOURNAL. As the moth is a curse to orchardists, rendering apples not only unsalable but absolutely worthless, the article is timely, and if the remedies prescribed by Professor Hillman are applied the pest may be exterminated. A few years ago a wormy apple, unless it was imported, was not seen in Nevada, but of late, as lovers of the delicious fruit well know, apples have been infected with worms here as in California, and fears have been expressed that orchards would have to be uprooted to rid the country of the pest.

"German Syrup" A Throat and Lung Specialty. Those who have not used Boschee's German Syrup for some severe and chronic trouble of the Throat and Lungs can hardly appreciate what a truly wonderful medicine it is. The delicious sensations of healing, easing, clearing, strength-gathering and recovering are unknown joys. For German Syrup we do not ask easy cases. Sugar and water may smooth a throat or stop a tickling—for a while. This is as far as the ordinary cough medicine goes. Boschee's German Syrup is a discovery, a great Throat and Lung Specialty. Where for years there have been sensitiveness, pain, coughing, spitting, hemorrhage, voice failure, weakness, slipping down hill, where doctors and medicine and advice have been swallowed and followed to the gulf of despair, where there is the sickening conviction that all is over and the end is inevitable, there we place German Syrup. It cures. You are a live man yet if you take it. Mrs. Nettie Harrison's world-famed toilet articles. IN THE LEAD.
